

Price 25 Cents

PAINE'S
POPULAR PLAYS

That Awful
Letter

Mac KENZIE

PAINE PUBLISHING CO.
DAYTON, OHIO

NO PLAYS EXCHANGED

Price 25 Cents

PAINE'S
POPULAR PLAYS

That Awful
Letter

Mac KENZIE

PAINE PUBLISHING CO.
DAYTON, OHIO

NO PLAYS EXCHANGED

The Project Gutenberg eBook of That Awful Letter: A Comedy for Girls

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

Title: That Awful Letter: A Comedy for Girls

Author: Edna I. MacKenzie

Release date: August 16, 2016 [eBook #52818]

Most recently updated: October 23, 2024

Language: English

Other information and formats: www.gutenberg.org/ebooks/52818

Credits: Produced by Emmy, MFR and the Online Distributed
Proofreading Team at <http://www.pgdp.net>

 START OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK THAT AWFUL
LETTER: A COMEDY FOR GIRLS ***

Price 25 Cents

PAINE'S
POPULAR PLAYS

That Awful Letter

Mac KENZIE

PAINE PUBLISHING CO.
DAYTON, OHIO

NO PLAYS EXCHANGED

New Entertainment Songs By Edna Randolph Worrell.

These songs can be used in all manner of entertainments. The music is easy, and both music and words are especially catchy. Children like them. Everybody likes them. Sheet music. Price 25 cents each. Five copies, $1.00.

WE HOPE YOU'VE BROUGHT YOUR SMILES ALONG. A welcome song that will at once put the audience in a joyous frame of mind and create a happy impression that will mean half the success of your entire program. Words, bright and inspiring. Music, catchy.

WE'LL NOW HAVE TO SAY GOOD-BYE. This beautiful song has snap and go that will appeal alike to visitors and singers. It is just the song to send your audience home with happy memories of the occasion.

WE'VE JUST ARRIVED FROM BASHFUL TOWN. This song will bring memories to the listeners of their own bashful school days. Words, unusually clever. Music, decidedly melodious. A capital welcome song, or it may be sung at any time on the program with assured success.

MY OWN AMERICA, I LOVE THEE. A song that will bring a thrill of patriotism to the heart of every one who hears it. The children and grown-ups just can't resist the catchy music. It makes a capital marching song.

COME AND PARTAKE OF OUR WELCOME CAKE. A merry welcome song and a jolly one, too. The audience will be immediately curious about the Welcome Cake, and the children will love to surprise the listeners with the catchy words. Music, easy and tuneful.

LULLABY LANE. The music and words blend so beautifully that people will be humming the appealing strains long after they hear this charming song. A wonderfully effective closing song, whether sung by the school or as a solo by a little girl, with a chorus of other little girls with dolls.

JOLLY PICKANINNIES. Words by Elizabeth F. Guptill. Music by Edna R. Worrell. This spicy coon song will bring down the house, especially if you use the directions for the motions which accompany the music. The black faces and shining eyes of the pickaninnies will guarantee a hit. The words are great and the music just right.

THE LITTLE BIRD'S SECRET. Here is just the song for those two little folks to sing together. They won't have to be coaxed to sing it, especially when they find that the whole school is to whistle the chorus. This is a decided novelty, and will prove a rare treat to your audience.

A GARDEN ROMANCE. This is a dainty little song telling of the romance and wedding of Marigold and Sweet William. It is just the song for dainty little girls to sing.

COME TO THE NURSERY RHYME GARDEN AND PLAY. Here is something different for the little folks to sing. The Nursery Rhyme Folk are so familiar to children, it will be no trick for them to remember the words. The music has a most captivating swing.

Paine Publishing Company - - Dayton, Ohio

That Awful Letter

A Comedy for Girls

BY
EDNA I. MAC KENZIE

Copyright, 1919, by
PAINE PUBLISHING COMPANY

PAINE PUBLISHING COMPANY
DAYTON, OHIO

THAT AWFUL LETTER

CHARACTERS

MARGARET NEILSON—A Snobbish City Girl.

ELIZABETH NORTON—Her Country Cousin.

HELEN MONTGOMERY—Margaret's Dearest Friend.

EDITH BROWNING—A Friend of Elizabeth's.

NORA—A Maid of Neilson's

(This part may be taken by Edith Browning.)

TIME OF PLAYING—About Forty Minutes.

THAT AWFUL LETTER

SCENE I

(Sitting-room in Neilson's house, well furnished. Margaret overdressed, is sitting reading a magazine. She looks up impatiently and throws it down in disgust.)

MARGARET—(crossly.) There's no use in my trying to read or do anything else when I'm so provoked. I don't see why dad can't (the bell rings) Oh, drat that bell! I don't want to see any person. I wish people would stay at home. (Goes and looks out.) Oh! it's Helen! I wonder what she wants now. She is always running over and I'm sure I'm never over there any more than four times a day at the most. (Helen comes in and Margaret rushes to embrace her.) Oh Helen, you dear girl! I'm so glad to see you. I was just wishing you would come over. Do take off your hat and stay awhile. I've just been so mad I could boil over or bite somebody or do something awful.

HELEN—Why, what is the matter with you? What are you mad about? (Aside, It seems to me she is always in hot water or a stew about something.)

MARGARET—Well, sit down and I'll tell you about it. (They sit down on a couch.) It seems that dad has some country relations somewhere in the backwoods. He's had them ever since he was born but he's just remembering them now. Well, it seems that there's a girl about my age and dad was looking over some old photos last night and came across one of her when she was six years old. That picture put him into the notion that he would like to see that girl and nothing will do but I must write and ask her up.

HELEN—That won't hurt you, will it? I think it would be nice to have a girl visiting you. I know when Marian Staddon was visiting me, we had a dandy time—parties, dances, and heaps of things.

MARGARET—Yes, but can't you get anything into your head? This is a cousin from the backwoods and just imagine the kind of figure she'd cut in our set! Why, she'll likely have the oddest clothes and speak most horrible English and, and—not know beans. And then that would spoil all our plans for getting in with Edith Browning. The Brownings, you know, are such an aristocratic family and are the whole cheese since they moved to the city. I'm just crazy to get in with them, but of course if they saw me with that girl, that would spoil everything. Edith would know that my father had sprung from common ordinary farmers and we have just succeeded in making people think we had very important ancestors.

HELEN—(aside) Gee! but isn't she some snob. Well, nobody is deceived I can vouch for that. (aloud.) I know Edith Browning is the whole thing just at present. I've met her several times and think she is lovely, (pause) not a bit stuck up, you know. Of course we want to get in with her, especially this winter when Beth Norton is going to visit her, for everybody will be having parties and things for her.

MARGARET—And pray, who is Beth Norton?

HELEN—Don't you know? Why, she is the girl that all the girls at Erskine College were just crazy about. Why, they say there's never been a girl there before who was as popular. And act! Why, she took the chief parts in all their plays and the girls said she had any professional actress beaten all to pieces. Oh yes, we must manage to get in with them if we can. Now about your cousin, say, why can't you have her up for just a couple of days and keep her out of the way?

MARGARET—Dad is bound that I'll invite her up for two weeks anyway. I can generally manage him pretty well, but this time he's as obstinate as a mule. I'm glad I didn't inherit his bad qualities.

HELEN—(aside) I think she has all of his and some of her own to boot, (aloud) I have an idea. Write her such a letter that if she has any sense at all she'll know she's not wanted and then perhaps she won't come.

MARGARET—(jumping up) That is a good idea! Let's write it now. What shall we put into it? (goes to a table where there is paper and ink, sits down to write)

HELEN—(going to the table) Tell her that,—oh, I don't know. You ought to be good at that sort of thing. (Margaret looks up sharply). Writing letters

I mean. You can write such splendid ones, you know. (Margaret writes awhile while Helen looks over her shoulder.)

MARGARET—(rising) There, that ought to do the trick. What do you think of it?

HELEN—Well, if she can't take the hint from that that she's not wanted, she must be as dense as a—a fog! (goes to put on her hat.) I must go for I promised to stay only a few minutes. Good-bye (goes towards the door) I hope your cousin won't be too boorish if she does come.

MARGARET—Good-bye. We'll trust to luck. (Helen disappears. Margaret comes to centre of stage) Well, that letter is a good stunt, but my, wouldn't dad be angry if he knew! But I'll chance it that he doesn't find out. Now for a toast. (Pretends to drink.) Here's to the refusal of my invitation to my country cousin.

CURTAIN

SCENE II

(A country kitchen. Elizabeth in middie and skirt, enters slowly toward centre of stage, examining an envelope.)

ELIZABETH—(still examining envelope.) I wonder who this letter's from. I don't know the writing and it's from New York City. But there's lot of people I know there. Perhaps it's from one of those little girls at Erskine College that were always getting a crush on us bigger girls and bothering us to death with their gushing. Now, who is it from anyway? (laughing.) Say, I never thought of it, but perhaps if I opened it I'd find out. (Opens and glances over it, and seems amazed and reads very slowly aloud.)

14 Riverside Drive, New York City.

Dear Cousin Elizabeth:

Father wished me to write and ask you to visit us for a couple of weeks. I know that you really wouldn't want to come as you'd feel so shy and awkward in a city home and among the girls in our set and doubtless you have no clothes suitable for the city; but as he wished me to ask you, I have done so.

Yours truly,
Margaret Neilson.

(Elizabeth looks up bewildered.)

ELIZABETH—What a queer letter! I wonder if any of the girls are playing a trick on me. (thinks.) Now, I have it. I've heard mother mention her brother, Jerry Neilson, who went to the city and his aristocratic wife made him cut his country relations when they got rich. So this must be from my cousin. But how could any girl write such a rude, insolent letter like that! She certainly was forced to write against her will. I bet her father never saw that letter. It would serve her right if I sent it to him. I'd feel out of place in a city home and in her set! Well, (laughing) that's a joke, when I've been in some of the best homes in New York City. I wonder what Edith Browning would say to that and a lot of the other girls at dear old Erskine. Well, my dear cousin, I'll just write you a polite note of refusal.

(Goes to table and writes, then reads aloud).

“Miss Edith Norton regrets with pleasure the sincerely cordial and hospitable invitation of Miss Margaret Neilson.” Oh, (suddenly jumping and clapping her hands.) I've an idea! I'll accept my kind and hospitable cousin's invitation since she's so anxious to have me and since she expects me to be such a queer freak from the backwoods, it would be too bad to disappoint her, so I'll dress and act the part of the poor country cousin she's looking for. Oh, (dancing around) it will be heaps of fun. I'll stay there a day and then I'll pay Edith Browning that visit I've promised her for ages. (Going towards the exit.) The girls at Erskine always said I was a born actress and now I'll have the chance to prove whether they were just flattering me or not. (Stops and glances at the address, 14 Riverside Drive.) Why, Mildred Ewing lives just a couple houses from there. I'll dress there and just slip over when the coast is clear. There's some of my masquerade costumes up in the attic. I'll run and see if I can find something suitable for my new role. Say, but won't I lead my dear cousin a merry dance! (Laughs and runs off the stage.)

CURTAIN

SCENE III

(Sitting room in Neilson's house. Margaret is seated doing fancywork. Helen comes in and Margaret rushes to meet her.)

HELEN—Say, what's up now that you had to have me come over in such a hurry? Have you any startling news? (Both go towards centre.)

MARGARET—Oh Helen, I'm in a terrible fix and all over that awful letter you made me write to—

HELEN—(interrupting indignantly.) I made you write!

MARGARET—Yes, to Elizabeth—or Lizzie as I guess she's called. Would you ever think she'd accept that invitation?

HELEN—No, she hasn't, has she?

MARGARET—Yes, she has and here's her answer. (shows her a letter written on some very brightly colored paper or wrapping paper.) Just look at the spelling and the style! Wouldn't it crimp you? And just wait until I read it to you (begins to read, while Helen follows her over her shoulder and giggles all through the reading of it.)

Dear Maggie—(Isn't that abominable?)—

I've been wanting ter visit the city ever since I was skin high to a grasshopper, but didn't know I had any kin in the city that I could visit. It's awferlly kind of youse to ask me and I'll be there as sure as guns this coming Wednesday. I jest got some new clothes made by Susannah Sparks and they're mighty stylish, I kin tell yer. I aint a bit bashful so youse kin invite all the people in youse like. I'd like ter meet yer friends awful well. Remember me to yer pap.

Yers to a sliver,
Lizzie Norton.

(throws the letter down on the table in disgust and makes a face.) Isn't that perfectly awful? That means she'll be here to-morrow and oh, she must be dreadful! And what if she should tell dad about that awful letter we wrote! Oh, why did I do it, and whatever will I do? (Sinks down in chair and begins to cry.)

HELEN—(going over and putting her arm around her.) Oh, cheer up! Things might be worse. You can manage to avoid the girls for awhile and you can give Lizzie books to read or something to keep her in the background and out of mischief.

MARGARET—(drying her eyes.) It's a good thing she isn't coming today for you know I've invited Edith Browning for tea and I want to be on my best behavior and be as nice as I can so as to make a good impression. If Lizzie were here, I would be mortified to death. (bell rings behind stage.) Oh, there's the bell. It's too early for Edith. I wonder who it is. (goes to the door and looks out.) There's Nora answering the door now. (throws up her hands in horror.) Good heavens, who can that awful person be!

HELEN—What person? (Goes and looks too and giggles.) Goodness, I bet she's escaped from some asylum. But listen, Nora's going to settle her. (both listen at door.)

NORA—(behind the scenes) Yez can't come in here. This is no place for the likes of ye. Ye'd better thry the asylum where ye belong.

ELIZABETH—(behind the scenes) Yer'd better go there yerself. Let me tell yer that I kin come in if I want ter. I've come to visit my Uncle Jerry and yer needn't think a red-haired freckled flip of a thing like yer can stop me. Now stop making a door of yerself and let me through or I'll tell my cousin Maggie on yer.

HELEN—Good heavens, here she comes! (Drags Margaret to front of stage where they both fall limp into chairs.)

MARGARET—Merciful powers, it's Lizzie! Isn't she—(Elizabeth appears at door, dressed in a most ridiculous fashion and carries an old-fashioned telescope and a big satchel. Both girls sit staring at her.)

ELIZABETH—(Rushing up to them and throwing down her telescope) Helloa, girls! Be one of youse my cousin Maggie? I'm Lizzie Norton. I got a chance ter come up a day earlier so I didn't think it would make any odds. (The girls have jumped to their feet thunder-struck.)

ELIZABETH—(looks from one to the other) Say, what's the matter with youse? Be youse both deaf and dumb?

MARGARET—(extending her hand which Elizabeth seizes) I'm Margaret Neilson so I suppose you must be my cousin Lizzie. We were not expecting you until to-morrow. (Aside to Helen.) Oh, Helen, isn't she perfectly dreadful?

HELEN—(aside to Margaret) Well, I should say! And her clothes sure are the latest style as there's never been any like them—yet!

ELIZABETH—(tugging at the elastic on her hat) Well, youse didn't tell me ter take off my hat, but I guess I'll make myself ter hum. (Takes off her hat and throws it on the couch and stares around.) My, aint everything here perfectly grand! (Goes around the room.) Youse folks must be pretty stylish. Now, ter home us folks aint never seen such nice things. (Turns suddenly.) Say, how's Uncle Jerry, Maggie?

MARGARET—If you're referring to my father, his name is J. Ernest Neilson, so please call him Uncle Ernest. As for myself, I detest the name of Maggie. Do call me Margaret.

ELIZABETH—Oh, yer rather peppery aint yer? I'm sure Jerry is just as good a name as yer kin find anywhere. Why, we named our old white horse that and a better horse yer couldn't have. As for Maggie, our black and white spotted cow is called that and she gives more milk than any of them. (Margaret looks more and more disgusted and Helen amused.) Say, aint you going to interduce me to your friend? At hum we always interduce everybody to everybody else.

MARGARET—I beg your pardon. This is my friend, Miss Helen Montgomery. (Helen raises her hand very high and Elizabeth pulls it down and shakes it heartily.)

ELIZABETH—Please ter meet you, Helly. I suspect I'll get real acquainted with yer before my visit's over. Yer don't look quite as stuck-uppish as my cousin there. (Margaret makes a face while Helen laughs.)

HELEN—I feel greatly complimented, I'm sure. (Aside) She's summed up Margaret pretty well for a green country girl.

ELIZABETH—(examining the girl's clothes) Say, girls, yer dressed up mighty swell. Be yer going to a party?

MARGARET—(proudly) Why, no, these are just our every-day clothes.

ELIZABETH—(in surprise). You don't say! (Smoothing down her own dress proudly.) Don't you like my new dress? (Margaret looks disdainful.) I was bound to have Susannah make it stylish and put in all the pleats and frills she could. I think she made a real good job of it, don't youse?

HELEN—(sarcastically) Why, yes, I think it is beautiful (looking at Elizabeth's hat) and what a lovely hat you have and so becoming. (Turns her back to laugh.)

ELIZABETH—(getting the hat and turning it around in her hand) Yes, I think it mighty nice and so should it be for it was awferlly expensive. I paid $1.98 for the shape itself at (names a local milliner) and I trimmed it myself. (Puts it back on sofa. Helen and Margaret sit down.)

HELEN—(aside) It wouldn't need a detective to make that discovery, that's one thing sure.

ELIZABETH—(unfastening satchel and taking out a gaily colored centre-piece) Now, I'll jest set down and work at this centre-piece. (Sits down in rocking chair and works.) I'm going to give it to you, Mag—Margaret, I mean, for yer parler table.

MARGARET—(aside) Oh, gee, imagine that on our highly polished table. I guess it will be more likely to adorn the attic. (aloud) Oh, that's very nice of you. By the way, how did you find your way here?

HELEN—Oh yes, how did you when you had never been in the city before?

ELIZABETH—Well, now, I did have a mighty hard time of it at first. I asked one of them policemen if he could tell me where Uncle Jer—where Mr. J. Ernest Neilson lived and he just laughed at me. (She keeps rocking.)

HELEN—Well, I should think he would. Didn't you know any better than that?

ELIZABETH—(still sewing) Why, I was told that them policemen could answer any kind of a question. At hum everybody knows where everybody else lives so I thought it would be the same here. (Both girls laugh.) Anyway he asked what his address was and I showed him the top of yer letter.

MARGARET—(in horror) You didn't show him my letter!

ELIZABETH—Sure and he must have got a good squint at what was in it, too, for he looked so funny. Well he told me to get into one of them street car things, and the feller who was all dressed up in brass buttons and took the tickets told me when to get into another so it was real easy. But I think the people here are dreadfully imperlite. They kept giggling and giggling. I asked one what the joke was and she grew awfully red and didn't answer. I think it's mighty rude not to tell other folks the joke, why down to hum—(looks up just as the girls are turning up their noses). Say, what's the matter with your noses? Have they nervous twitches in them? Get a bottle of Dr. Cure-all's syrup of tar at (name of local druggist) and it will soon stop that for it cured my cold. (Rising and throwing fancy work on chair.) Laws a me, I'm awfully thirsty. Where's the kitchen (goes towards door, Margaret starts up). Never mind coming. I'll just use the dipper so you don't need to get me a glass.

MARGARET—Well, tell Nora to get you a drink. (Exit Elizabeth). Oh Helen, I never saw anybody so common—

HELEN—(interrupting). Why she's the most uncommon specimen I ever met in all my life.

MARGARET—(proceeding)—and horrid before—and oh, (jumping up in consternation), I forgot all about Edith coming. She'll be here soon now and I simply must get Lizzie out of the way before she comes. Oh Helen, (putting her arm around her), hurry up and think up something to help me out of this hole.

HELEN—(aside), And she was so grateful when I tried to help her the last time. But she's in a pretty tight box now so I guess I'll have to try and patch it up. I wish her important ancestors had given her some brains. (Aloud.) Oh, tell her—tell her—. Now let me think (thinks for a minute and suddenly grabs Margaret's arm). I have it. Tell her that you know she must be very tired after her long journey and that you're sure she would like to rest and have tea quietly in her own room. Nora could take it up on a tray. Lizzie will think it's so considerate of you, I'm pretty sure, and the novelty of having things sent up to her might appeal to her. Let's try it anyway.

MARGARET—All right. I'd try anything. (Elizabeth appears.) But here she comes now. (Elizabeth comes toward centre and Margaret goes to meet her and puts her arm around Elizabeth's waist). Oh Lizzie, I know you must be pretty tired after your long journey. I think perhaps you had better rest quietly until tea time. Then I'll tell Nora to fix you up a nice dainty tray and you'll be under no nervous strain at all.

ELIZABETH—Me tired after that speck of a ride on the train! Why I've saw me walk five miles ter town and go home and milk ten cows and not be a bit the worse for it. And talk about nerves. Well I may be nervy but I aint got them nerves that make people act like sillies. Now I'll just go up and put on my red chiny silk dress Susannah fixed up that stylish with yeller bows and six frills and point de spit lace. It will only take me a few minutes and I'll be down in lots of time for supper. (Gets valise and goes towards exit, then stops at one end of stage), (Aside), I guess it's time that I ended this farce. I think I've given my dear cousin a pretty strong jolt, judging from her face and actions. Gee, she's the limit all right. Anyway, I had better change into a decent dress as I would hate to offend Uncle Jerry—I mean Uncle J. Ernest Neilson (exit Elizabeth).

(Margaret sits moodily in chair with head propped on knees. Helen sits toying with some fancy work.)

HELEN—For goodness sake, Margaret, cheer up, you're not dead yet!

MARGARET—I wish I were. What am I going to do? and Edith is due any minute. I wonder what made Lizzie strike today.

HELEN—(explosively) Well, do you know, I like her!

MARGARET—(in surprise) Do you really? Well, I believe I do myself. There's something rather refreshing about her and she's so frank and good-natured. She doesn't bear the least grudge for that horrid letter we sent. Perhaps she doesn't see anything wrong with it though. Oh, whatever made me do it? I feel as mean as dirt everytime I think of it. I'd give anything if I had never written it.

HELEN—Yes, I guess it was pretty shabby, but what's done cannot be undone. Anyway, I don't suppose she knows enough to take offense at it. (Starting up.) Oh, I have an idea!

MARGARET—(moodily), I notice that you do catch on to one once in a while. Well let's hear it.

HELEN—(aside in disgust) Now, wouldn't that crimp you! She couldn't find an idea all by herself in a thousand years. (Aloud). Why, I was just thinking that Lizzie would look quite pretty if she had a decent dress to wear and was fixed up some. Now, what's to hinder you lending her one of your pretty dresses and doing her hair in some becoming fashion? I bet she wouldn't look bad at all.

MARGARET—Why, she wouldn't. I'll go right up now and do it (starts toward exit), or she'll be coming down in some awful concoction of a dress. Oh, dear, I feel awfully nervous.

HELEN—Did you hear what she said about nerves? The very idea, when nerves are all the go now. (Bell rings). Oh, there's Edith now. I wish she had stayed away for half an hour longer.

MARGARET—So do I. And however will I manage to fix Lizzie up now?

HELEN—Talk for a few minutes and then excuse yourself and I'll entertain Edith until you come back.

MARGARET—(warmly) Helen, you're a dear and just full of ideas. I don't know what I'd do without you. (Goes out).

HELEN—(aside dramatically), Behold the expanding of Miss Margaret Neilson's character. She is actually wakening up to what I am trying to do for her and has even expressed one grain of gratitude. Well I guess I'll hang on to the grain, perhaps it will sprout. (Sees Lizzie's hat and fancy work.) Goodness I'd better get these out of sight or they'd be a sure giveaway. (Runs and thrusts fancy work under a cushion and throws hat behind couch. Margaret appears arm in arm with Edith who is well but quietly dressed. Helen goes to meet them.)

MARGARET—You know Helen Montgomery don't you, Miss Browning?

EDITH—Oh call me Edith, it's more sociable and I'll call you Margaret. Why yes, (shaking hands with Helen), I have met you several times, haven't I? Coming to a new city it takes a person quite awhile to get acquainted, but I'm managing not too badly.

HELEN—Why, I should say not. You have made hosts of friends already from all accounts.

EDITH—Yes, everybody has been awfully kind to me and then I'd met several people when I was at Erskine. (All girls take seats, Edith sitting where she can see the exit by turning slightly.) I hope you girls weren't expecting me any sooner. I had some shopping to do and that delayed me.

MARGARET—Oh, that's all right, but we were just saying we wish you'd hurry up so that we could have a nice, long chat about everything before supper, so—

HELEN—(interrupting) Oh, Edith, do tell us about some of the jolly times you had at Erskine College. I'm just aching to hear about them. (Draws chair closer to Edith).

MARGARET—Yes, please do! (Draws her chair closer).

EDITH—Why, I could tell you lots, but really I wouldn't know where to begin and once I began, I wouldn't know where to stop. For one thing we used to have midnight suppers whenever one of the girls would get a box from home. We'd all meet in one room and have nothing but candles for a light and when we heard anyone coming, we would have to blow them out, quick as wink. Oh, but it was exciting when we heard any footsteps outside! There'd be a wild scamper, I can tell you.

HELEN AND MARGARET—I guess there would be. What would you do?

EDITH—Everybody would grab the first thing that came handy and we'd make ourselves as small as possible. We'd squeeze four or five into bed with the eats and a few under while the rest would get into a closet. One of the girls would snore and the teacher would think she was asleep and pass on. It was pretty hard on the eats, though, being grabbed in such a hurry and getting all crushed up, but then it was lots of excitement and fun.

HELEN—What else did you do?

EDITH—Well, we put on some pretty good amateur plays. Beth Norton, was simply grand in anything like that. Say, (with enthusiasm) you just ought to know Beth. She's the dearest girl out. Everybody raved over her at Erskine. She was just bubbling over with fun and mischief and kept things lively all the time. She was so good-hearted and kind too and had the most forgiving nature. One girl said she was so full of fun that there wasn't a speck of room for spite to lodge in.

MARGARET—She must be lovely. I'd like awfully well to meet her.

EDITH—Well, I don't see why you couldn't for I just got a letter from her and she said she was going to visit me in a couple days. She said she was visiting some snobbish cousin of hers who needs to be taken down a peg or two. I'd love to see her do it, but I wouldn't like to be the cousin, I can tell you.

MARGARET—No, nor I either, but those people who put on such airs ought to have it taken out of them some way or other. I wonder who she is.

EDITH—I don't know. Beth wouldn't think of giving her away. (Helen stares fixedly at Margaret and nods. Margaret rises.)

MARGARET—I wonder if you'd excuse me for a few minutes. I have some things I must attend to.

EDITH—Why of course. Don't hurry back. (Gazes at Margaret starting to go out. Elizabeth appears at exit very daintily dressed.)

EDITH—(rushing past Margaret seizes Elizabeth and hugs her), Why Beth, you dear girl, (pulls her towards centre), wherever did you come from? The girls were just saying they didn't know you. (Margaret and Helen both stand in amazement.) That's funny.

ELIZABETH—Oh, helloa Edith! I didn't know you knew my cousin. I'm just staying here until to-morrow and then I'm going to your place for awhile.

EDITH—(aside in horror), So this Margaret Neilson is the snob Beth is to take down a peg. Good gracious, but I've put my foot into it. (Edith and Beth go to one side and eagerly converse in low tones).

MARGARET—(to Helen), Lizzie, Beth Norton! Why whatever does it mean anyway? (thinks), How can she be one and the same person? Oh, oh, I see it now. The names are both nicknames and I never imagined my cousin Elizabeth was the much talked of Beth. And so I'm the snob that Edith said Beth was to take down a peg! (Pauses) And the worst of it is I know I deserve it after that horrible letter. I don't deserve to have her ever speak to me again.

HELEN—But, whatever did she mean by dressing up like that!

MARGARET—Why, don't you see? Didn't you say that when she acted, she had all the professionals beaten to pieces? Well, she's acted that country gawk I inferred in that letter to take me down that peg. Gee, she's taken me down a whole bunch of them. And oh look how we treated her since she came. Oh, Helen, I'm so ashamed. I wish there was a hole in the floor so that I could crawl into it.

HELEN—(aside), Thank goodness, she's admitted that much. There's hope for her yet. (Aloud.) We both acted awfully mean and for my part I'm going to take my pill and swallow it.

MARGARET—I will too. It's mighty bitter, but the worse the medicine tastes, as a rule, the better are the results. I'll never—(Elizabeth comes up to her).

ELIZABETH—Well, Mag—Margaret, I guess it's up to me to explain. You see when I got your letter which showed me so plainly that you considered any person brought up in the country was some sort of a curiosity and nothing but an ignoramus, I thought I would come and explain to you that the farmers of today are among the best educated and most wealthy people there are and their daughters are receiving the very best advantages that can be gotten. But when I read your letter over, I couldn't resist the temptation of acting the awkward gawk of a specimen you expected. Did I succeed?

MARGARET—Succeed! Oh goodness, it was awful. (Sinks into a chair and starts to cry), Oh, Liz—Beth, I mean. I know I've been as nasty and snobbish as I could. And you don't know how mean I've felt ever since I wrote that awful, awful letter. I've wished again and again that I'd never been so rude and horrid. Will you ever forgive me? (Cries).

ELIZABETH—(Putting her arm around her), Oh, cheer up, Margaret, of course I'll forgive you; you just need some of your notions changed. That's all. And when it comes to forgiving, perhaps I'd better ask you to forgive me for playing such a trick on you. (Aside, laughing), But, gee it was the best fun I've had for ages. Their shocked faces! (laugh), their turned up noses, (laughs), their open disgust. Oh glory, it was worth a circus to see them.

EDITH—Well, let's forget everything that's been done and said and begin all over again. I think we'll be great friends. Let's shake over it. (She takes Helen's hand, Elizabeth takes Margaret's and they stand with crossed hands in front of stage).

ELIZABETH—Oh girls, see how our hands are crossed; I wonder who's going to be married first.

CURTAIN

Christmas Entertainments

CHRISTMAS AT PUNKIN HOLLER. A new Christmas play by Elizabeth F. Guptill that abounds in clean, wholesome fun from beginning to end. It depicts the trials of the teacher of an old-fashioned "deestric school" in conducting the last rehearsal for the Christmas Entertainment. Some of the pupils are in "custom," as big Jake puts it, and "Sandy Claus" is there. The children go through their parts with gusto and more or less success. May be given in any schoolroom by any number. Easy to produce. Costumes simple. Children and grown-ups will be delighted with CHRISTMAS AT PUNKIN HOLLER. Price, 15 cents.

A TOPSY TURVY CHRISTMAS. Another new Christmas play by Elizabeth F. Guptill. It is decidedly humorous from start to finish. The characters are strong and at every turn of the play there is a happy surprise for the audience. The children are tired of “minding,” and the everything being “just so,” so they start to find a place where they will find things different. They find it in Topsy Turvy Land, where they have strange experiences. When at last they have a Topsy Turvy Christmas, they are ready to go home and be satisfied with things just as they are. May be given in any schoolroom by any number of children not less than fifteen. In two short scenes. This clever play will prove a sure winner wherever produced. Price, 15 cents.

CHRISTMAS AT McCARTHY’S. Elizabeth P. Guptill. Here is a new Christmas play for the older children and as many young children as are available. It combines in a marked degree the gentlest pathos and the most sparkling humor. Several nationalities are represented in the tenement and there is opportunity for the introduction of specialties if desired. Circumstances cause Elsie, the tenement orphan, to believe Jimmy, the newsboy, will buy her a Christmas present, and it seems it is up to Jimmy to do it. Christmas is an unknown quantity at the tenement, but all agree that Elsie must not be disappointed, and plan to have one somehow. The entertainment is given by the “inhabitants themselves,” at McCarthy’s. In the midst of the fun, Elsie’s lost father walks in, and the finale is a general rejoicing. Price, 25c.

CHRISTMAS DIALOGUES. By Cecil J. Richmond. A book full of the choicest new and original dialogues for Christmas, parts for both boys and girls being well provided for. Some are for the little folks, in rhyme, some are for intermediate grades, and others for older children. Every dialogue in this book is decidedly to the point and easy to prepare. They will delight young and old alike. Contents: Is There a Santa Claus? 2 small children, Santa Claus and chorus; Herbert’s Discovery, 2 boys; The Christmas Dinner, 2 little girls, 1 larger girl and 2 boys; Playing Santa Claus, 1 small and 2 larger boys; A Double Christmas Gift, 2 small girls, 2 larger girls, and 3 boys. Price, 15 cents.

EVERGREEN AND HOLLY—SONG AND DRILL. By Elizabeth F. Guptill. A drill for any even number of boys and girls, or all girls. The girls carry garlands of evergreen while the boys carry wreaths of the same. After a spectacular drill and fancy march they all sing a beautiful Christmas song, which accompanies the drill. Following the song they wind a spiral to the center of the stage, unwind same and march off. Complete instructions are given. It is the best Christmas drill ever published; easy to produce and decidedly novel. Price, 15 cents.

PEARL'S CHRISTMAS. Original, pleasing and interesting Christmas dialogue with an excellent moral, for 3 boys and 4 girls. Price, 5 cents; seven copies, 25 cents.

SITTING UP FOR SANTA CLAUS. A humorous dialogue for 6 girls, 5 boys, and Santa Claus. If you expect to have a Christmas entertainment, you surely want this. Single copy, 10 cents; or 10 copies, 60 cents.

Paine Publishing Company, Dayton, Ohio

READINGS AND RECITATIONS

COMIC ENTERTAINER, THE. An up-to-date collection of the choicest humor. Such a variety in prose and poetry as to suit almost any occasion. The book also contains four monologues, two for male and two for female characters; also four short dialogues. Price, thirty cents.

HUMOROUS MONOLOGUES. By Mayme R. Bitney. A fine collection of twenty-nine original monologues designed for the use of the amateur and the professional monologist. Practically suitable for ladies. The author has brought out with skill the humorous incidents that help make up the life of the country girl and woman, while the fashionable woman of the city, who is interested in parties, teas and golf, is just as truthfully depicted. Price, thirty cents.

THE EXCELLENT SCHOOL SPEAKER. The “Excellent”—is true to name. A book of over one hundred pages, especially compiled for us by C. S. Bradford, containing selections of poetry and prose, new and fresh. Full of good things. You can make no mistake in securing this speaker. Price, fifteen cents.

HOWE’S COMIC SCHOOL SPEAKER. Full of short, pithy, comic, and humorous recitations. This book should be in every school. Price, fifteen cents.

HOWE’S EXHIBITION SCHOOL SPEAKER. Contains about one hundred pages of selections of great range from the choicest literature of our country, suitable for schools, homes and exhibitions. It is the best thing out. Send for it. Price, fifteen cents.

THE JUVENILE SPEAKER. Every piece in this little book can be used and is worthy of its place in this useful work. It is undoubtedly the best book of the kind, for the money, published; and is highly recommended by teachers everywhere. Price, twenty cents.

LITTLE PIECES FOR LITTLE PEOPLE. Each set has twenty cards containing twenty-nine bright, pretty recitations for boys and girls, from five to ten years of age. Teachers like the pieces because of their convenient form. Being printed on cards, all wearisome copying is avoided. Price, fifteen cents.

MONOLOGUES FOR YOUNG FOLKS. By Mayme Riddle Bitney. Fifty-four original, clever, humorous monologues for young people from six to sixteen, or for monologists who impersonate children. A recitation may be a recounting of incidents, but a monologue has action; it becomes alive, and you are carried along with intense interest. A great variety of subjects. Also twenty-eight selections as follows: For Washington’s Birthday (4). For Labor Day (4). For Memorial Day, Flag Day, and other Patriotic Occasions (3). For Thanksgiving Day (8). For Christmas (9). Price, thirty cents.

RECITATIONS FOR PRIMARY GRADES, ORIGINAL AND UNIQUE. By Elizabeth F. Gupstill. A collection of an unusual sort. Every one is as interesting as a story, and every one has a very decided point. Not a recitation in the collection that is dull or impractical. Price, fifteen cents.

THE NORMAL SPEAKER. A book suited to the wants of all, from the smallest school-child to the oldest reader. Do you want the most eloquent passages ever delivered by our greatest orators? Do you want the most soul-stirring patriotism? Do you want the purest, tenderest and most ennobling pathos? Do you want the most droll, eccentric and ludicrous descriptions and characterizations? Do you want the richest, rarest and most side-splitting humor? Do you want to arouse a new interest in literature and elocution among your pupils? Do you want the selections recited by the most eminent elocutionists? Do you want the cream, the quintessence of all that is suitable for reading or declaiming in schools, exhibitions, literary societies, picnics, or in the family or private reading room? Buy the Normal Speaker and you will be sure to find in it something that will supply your wants. Price, thirty cents.

Our large Entertainment Catalogue sent on request.

PAINE PUBLISHING COMPANY, DAYTON, OHIO.

Transcriber's Notes:

The back cover had a sticker over the top obscuring the first entry and title. A duplicate advertisement was located and the words supplied from that.

Page 6, repeated word "of" removed from text (and some of her own)

Back cover, "Chistmas" changed to "Christmas" (a beautiful Christmas)

 END OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK THAT AWFUL
LETTER: A COMEDY FOR GIRLS ***

Updated editions will replace the previous one—the old editions will be renamed.

Creating the works from print editions not protected by U.S. copyright law means that no one owns a United States copyright in these works, so the Foundation (and you!) can copy and distribute it in the United States without permission and without paying copyright royalties. Special rules, set forth in the General Terms of Use part of this license, apply to copying and distributing Project Gutenberg™ electronic works to protect the PROJECT GUTENBERG™ concept and trademark. Project Gutenberg is a registered trademark, and may not be used if you charge for an eBook, except by following the terms of the trademark license, including paying royalties for use of the Project Gutenberg trademark. If you do not charge anything for copies of this eBook, complying with the trademark license is very easy. You may use this eBook for nearly any purpose such as creation of derivative works, reports, performances and research. Project Gutenberg eBooks may be modified and printed and given away—you may do practically ANYTHING in the United States with eBooks not protected by U.S. copyright law. Redistribution is subject to the trademark license, especially commercial redistribution.

START: FULL LICENSE

THE FULL PROJECT GUTENBERG™ LICENSE

PLEASE READ THIS BEFORE YOU DISTRIBUTE OR USE THIS WORK

To protect the Project Gutenberg™ mission of promoting the free distribution of electronic works, by using or distributing this work (or any other work associated in any way with the phrase “Project Gutenberg”), you agree to comply with all the terms of the Full Project Gutenberg License available with this file or online at www.gutenberg.org/license.

Section 1. General Terms of Use and Redistributing Project Gutenberg electronic works

1.A. By reading or using any part of this Project Gutenberg electronic work, you indicate that you have read, understand, agree to and accept all the terms of this license and intellectual property (trademark/copyright) agreement. If you do not agree to abide by all the terms of this agreement, you must cease using and return or destroy all copies of Project Gutenberg electronic works in your possession. If you paid a fee for obtaining a copy of or access to a Project Gutenberg electronic work and you do not agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement, you may obtain a refund from the person or entity to whom you paid the fee as set forth in paragraph 1.E.8.

1.B. “Project Gutenberg” is a registered trademark. It may only be used on or associated in any way with an electronic work by people who agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement. There are a few things that you can do with most Project Gutenberg electronic works even without complying with the full terms of this agreement. See paragraph 1.C below. There are a lot of things you can do with Project Gutenberg electronic works if you follow the terms of this agreement and help preserve free future access to Project Gutenberg electronic works. See paragraph 1.E below.

1.C. The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation (“the Foundation” or PGLAF), owns a compilation copyright in the collection of Project Gutenberg electronic works. Nearly all the individual works in the collection are in the public domain in the United States. If an individual work is unprotected by copyright law in the United States and you are located in the United States, we do not claim a right to prevent you from copying, distributing, performing, displaying or creating derivative works based on the work as long as all references to Project Gutenberg are removed. Of course, we hope that you will support the Project Gutenberg mission of promoting free access to electronic works by freely sharing Project Gutenberg works in compliance with the terms of this agreement for keeping the Project Gutenberg name associated with the work. You can easily comply with the terms of this agreement by keeping this work in the same format with its attached full Project Gutenberg License when you share it without charge with others.

1.D. The copyright laws of the place where you are located also govern what you can do with this work. Copyright laws in most countries are in a constant state of change. If you are outside the United States, check the laws of your country in addition to the terms of this agreement before downloading, copying, displaying, performing, distributing or creating derivative works based on this work or any other Project Gutenberg work. The Foundation makes no representations concerning the copyright status of any work in any country other than the United States.

1.E. Unless you have removed all references to Project Gutenberg:

1.E.1. The following sentence, with active links to, or other immediate access to, the full Project Gutenberg License must appear prominently whenever any copy of a Project Gutenberg work (any work on which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” appears, or with which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” is associated) is accessed, displayed, performed, viewed, copied or distributed:

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg™ License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is derived from texts not protected by U.S. copyright law (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase “Project Gutenberg” associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg.

1.E.5. Do not copy, display, perform, distribute or redistribute this electronic work, or any part of this electronic work, without prominently displaying the sentence set forth in paragraph 1.E.1 with active links or immediate access to the full terms of the Project Gutenberg License.

1.E.6. You may convert to and distribute this work in any binary, compressed, marked up, nonproprietary or proprietary form, including any word processing or hypertext form. However, if you provide access to or distribute copies of a Project Gutenberg work in a format other than “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other format used in the official version posted on the official Project Gutenberg website (www.gutenberg.org), you must, at no additional cost, fee or expense to the user, provide a copy, a means of exporting a copy, or a means of obtaining a copy upon request, of the work in its original “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other form. Any alternate format must include the full Project Gutenberg License as specified in paragraph 1.E.1.

1.E.7. Do not charge a fee for access to, viewing, displaying, performing, copying or distributing any Project Gutenberg works unless you comply with paragraph 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.8. You may charge a reasonable fee for copies of or providing access to or distributing Project Gutenberg electronic works provided that:

- You pay a royalty fee of 20% of the gross profits you derive from the use of Project Gutenberg works calculated using the method you already use to calculate your applicable taxes. The fee is owed to the owner of the Project Gutenberg trademark, but he has agreed to donate royalties under this paragraph to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation. Royalty payments must be paid within 60 days following each date on which you prepare (or are legally required to prepare) your periodic tax returns. Royalty payments should be clearly marked as such and sent to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation at the address specified in Section 4, "Information about donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation."
- You provide a full refund of any money paid by a user who notifies you in writing (or by e-mail) within 30 days of receipt that s/he does not agree to the terms of the full Project Gutenberg™ License. You must require such a user to return or destroy all copies of the works possessed in a physical medium and discontinue all use of and all access to other copies of Project Gutenberg™ works.
- You provide, in accordance with paragraph 1.F.3, a full refund of any money paid for a work or a replacement copy, if a defect in the electronic work is discovered and reported to you within 90 days of receipt of the work.
- You comply with all other terms of this agreement for free distribution of Project Gutenberg™ works.

1.E.9. If you wish to charge a fee or distribute a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work or group of works on different terms than are set forth in this agreement, you must obtain permission in writing from the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the manager of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark. Contact the Foundation as set forth in Section 3 below.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread works not protected by U.S. copyright law in creating the Project Gutenberg™ collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain “Defects,” such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

1.F.2. LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES - Except for the “Right of Replacement or Refund” described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH 1.F.3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

1.F.3. LIMITED RIGHT OF REPLACEMENT OR REFUND - If you discover a defect in this electronic work within 90 days of receiving it, you can receive a refund of the money (if any) you paid for it by sending a written explanation to the person you received the work from. If you received the work on a physical medium, you must return the medium with your written explanation. The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. If you received the work electronically, the person or entity providing it to you may choose to give you a second opportunity to receive the work electronically in lieu of a refund. If the second copy is also defective, you may demand a refund in writing without further opportunities to fix the problem.

1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you 'AS-IS', WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PURPOSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of this agreement shall not void the remaining provisions.

1.F.6. INDEMNITY - You agree to indemnify and hold the Foundation, the trademark owner, any agent or employee of the Foundation, anyone providing copies of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works in accordance with this agreement, and any volunteers associated with the production, promotion and distribution of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, harmless from all liability, costs and expenses, including legal fees, that arise directly or indirectly from any of the following which you do or cause to occur: (a) distribution of this or any Project Gutenberg work, (b) alteration, modification, or additions or deletions to any Project Gutenberg work, and (c) any Defect you cause.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility:
www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.