These «Popular Sayings» are the buds and blossoms of Spanish sentiment and poetry.

May these few flowers which in moments of pastime, we have culled from a very glowing clime, prove a worthy offering, and welcome as real exotics.

Popular Sayings.

Every popular saying is a chapter from the history of a heart.

A belle is generally the subject of two contrasting passions; the envy of women, the love of men. Envy says she is ugly, but love says she is an angel.

To mitigate sorrows, we doubtless need to sell remembrance to buy forgetfulness. Who would ever have thought the possession of a good memory would prove a misfortune?

Sympathy often enters by the eyes, lives in the heart, is fed by the ears, and is killed by ingratitude.

It is Cupid's well known axiom that he who loves, keeps silence. And there is also a maxim that if we imagine we can love two at the same time, three are deceived.

«That which cannot be signed ought not to be written,» Ferrer de Couto has said, most pertinently.

Faithfulness is a rare coin. To convert it into serviceable currency you must exchange it. Plain truth is another coin, also very rare, and there are persons who have used it so little that they are totally ignorant of its great value.

Though the attributes of God are all equally adorable, we find His mercy far easier to submit to, than His justice.

One of the many sweet morals of Ossorio-Bernard is this: «Respect old people, for it is a dilemma of destiny, to die or to become aged.»

In all languages we learn, what experience has taught all people, that a dog that barks will not bite.

In running swiftly up a hill, a certain individual fell and broke his neck. His fate is a lesson. In following the promptings of ambition, too recklessly, we often lose all.

«Acta, non verba» would, if always remembered, do away with much useless talking.

They say that Love is an electric spark, also a magnetic influence. But no doubt it is like a current of air, which, if strong, blows out a small fire, and increases a large one.

The worst conflagration may, it is said, be extinguished by water. But many tears have failed to extinguish the fire which burns in some hearts.

The rope always breaks in the thinnest place.

Of the many who are indifferent to the presence of grandeur or pathos, some sleep, some laugh, and a few yawn candidly.

Behold the injustice of the world, because the great grand-father once killed a cat in his village, the family has ever since been called «Cat-killer!»

It is foolish to make a sensible person suffer for the folly of a fool.

A rule for happiness: never go to bed without feeling sure you have performed at least one act of kindness during the day.

The deafest man is he who does not wish to hear.

With good intentions you can seldom do much wrong.

Bad habits should be early forsaken, for custom becomes second nature.

The wheel of fortune is as steady in its revolutions as a mill-wheel, and although Cupid may smile at the top to-day, to-morrow, in spite of his wings, he may be crushed beneath it.

In the garden of the world the soul is like a flower, and the dew for this flower is hope. Hope, and your soul will always be kept fresh.

The garb should always be suitable to the office and rank of the wearer.

Some persons study the stars to learn their destiny, and a lover studies a woman's eyes to know his.

I will read you your character, if you tell me what company you keep.

It is said to be a trait of woman, to slight those who adore her, and love those who do not care for her.

Distrust those who flame suddenly with enthusiasm. The hotter the frying-pan, the sooner melts the butter.

Work is something given directly from God, and it redeems the world.

Merit does much, but fortune often has a share in the bargain.

Much harm would arise if all the world believed in the Latin proverb;
«Audaces fortuna juvat.»

There is no such thing as a modest highwayman; neither does any honest fellow like to make himself too visible.

Notable actions are like the shadows of the individuals who perform them; the greater they are, the further the shadow is cast.

«Do not strive to hide your poverty, nor that of your family. When once it is understood that you are not ashamed of it, no one will try to make you blush over it.» So Alonso Quijano, advised his servant.

A favor kindly granted, is doubled.

He, whom you have once humiliated, is not likely to forget it.

A gem thrown away may be recovered, but the time lost in searching for it, can never be.

There is no true love where there is no true esteem.
To doubt in silence, is better than to contradict too readily.

Spirit is always above matter, as ether always evaporates from a material surface.

To the good or the beautiful, its own value suffices.

Trust God alone, for he only is sure to be just.

The worst martyrdom is loving an incomprehensible woman.

If you promise a real benefit, let your actions quickly follow your words.
Calumny hurts three persons, him who utters it, him who hears it, and him of whom it is spoken, but the last, happily, not always, or not for a long time.

If any one does or says a thing which you condemn, show your disapproval at once, for it is better to turn pale once, than to blush twice. And if the offender is an intimate acquaintance, speak plainly, for between friends straight accounts are desirable.

Of all sins men commit, none is blacker than ingratitude.

In taking, there can be no mistake, therefore take a moral rap when necessary.

There are women more fortunate and less constant, than some of their admirers would like them to be.

Be cautious of so called friends. If all is happiness around you, you will have them by hundreds, but when fortune deserts you, they will make off with the roses, leaving you only the thorns.

An error penitently confessed can be easily forgiven.

Many offences are only blunders.

He who knows not how to make himself great, often tries to make himself feared.

The eyes and lips of a beloved woman, master the most independent man.

To fatalism an evil is always great, and its remedy is always concealed. The eyes of a fatalist are magnifying-glasses which increase the size of every object.

Jealousy is only suspicion. Beware how you mingle appearances and realities.

The heart incapable of gratitude is also incapable of loving.

In the headache of a lady, or the lameness of a dog, you must not always believe.

It is better to be a good but humble person, than a high born rascal.

To avoid being a drunkard, observe the effect of intemperance in others.

The church bells ringing from a lofty steeple, seem like the voice of God, sounding above the clamor of the world.

There is a saying: «A father be to the good, and a father-in-law to the impudent, the selfish and the cruel.» But this would not be our advice; ours is—pity, pity.

Do not let your mind wander in empty space.
Those who live fast will not live long.

In every house there should exist a book, wherein would be written: «In the business of others, never meddle.»

Life is not altogether bad, even the strongest glare of day, is toned down every twenty-four hours, by twilight.

There are three kinds of grief: one kind which can be forgotten in pleasure, another which can be banished before philosophy, and still another kind which nothing but death can assuage.

Judgment, which should rule in marriage as in all things, is often warped by broken affection.

It is but fitting that the son should be brought up to the calling of the father.

Always spread your sail in time to catch a favoring breeze.

You can keep anything but a woman against her will.

Often the happiness of a person depends upon his tongue.

All knowledge is profitable if we know how to use it well.

Forsake the sword for wisdom.

The list of heroes is long, but the list of unregistered martyrs is longer.

To inspire esteem and confidence, there is no surer way than to be nicely punctual in any promise.

One bird in the hand, is better than a hundred in the air.

Caress a cat and she will probably claw your face.

A confiding woman, when she loves a man, clings as closely to him as an ivy vine, and deserves as firm and trust worthy a support.

Your father was poor, but honest. Try to be richer than he, but be equally honest.

How cautious should be the man who is selecting a fellow traveller, who is to journey through life with him, and part from him only at the grave; and who is to share all the fatigues and pleasures of the voyage, as the wife does with the husband, and the husband does with the wife.

The goddess called Fortune is a whimsical queen, she is also blind, so that she neither sees what she does, knows whom she raises, nor whom she casts down.

The one who strikes first has generally a better chance to strike twice.
Ignorance if earnest will overcome errors.

Many a hope has to go to the winds to complain.

«Matrimony, especially amongst christians, is a noose, which,» said Quijote, «fastened about the neck runs the closer and fits the more uneasily, by our struggling to get loose.»

«Christian marriage is indeed a gordian knot, which none can untie, and being twisted with our thread of life, nothing but the scythe of death can cut it,» says Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra.

There are many who agree with the squire, that a fat trouble is better than a lean one.

Say no when necessary, and ay when pertinent. One word has no more letters in it than the other.

To suffer for the sake of peace the heavy chain of unlucky union, may be honorable, virtuous and grand; but is not always advisable.

A place is great—as for instance Madrid—when, since childhood, have prayed in its temples men like Lope de Vega, Calderon and Cervantes; when it has given to science many noble names, and to independence many brave martyrs.

Put a copper coin into vinegar and it will become oxidized; put the same coin into oil, and it will become clear and brilliant. How plain the moral of this is.

A good and pleasant consort is a treasure that we ought not to rid ourselves of for a caprice.

Two hearts can never be very far apart if they have once been really united by Love.

Do not try to put the point of a pin between a woman's yea and nay, for they are often so close together.

One word is sufficient for a wise man.

There is nothing harder than to sing when in agony.

Honey is not for the mouth of an ass.
Sometimes he who sings once weeps ever after.

Weep with those who weep; smile with those who smile, and have a heart which echoes every joy and sorrow.

Where is the mortal, who after a sojourn of twenty-five years in this world, could say: «I saw nothing but pleasant visions»?

Believe only in large companies, when going to fight.

Certain hopes are like delusive dreams, like the electric flash which attends thunder and illuminates but an instant.

To be willing, is to be able.

Many a man who complains that he cannot keep his nose above water, would find it easier if he did not so often keep it above spirits.

Fortunate is the man who always finds at the right time, the cloth laid, and the bed made.

To have a good heart and to be unable to find another to appreciate it, is like having a ducat in a desert, where you can buy nothing with your gold.

He that gives a broken head should also give a plaster wherewith to mend it.

If we could know the secret history of heroism, deeds would become known which are now never dreamed of.

If we are to sing the beauty of the sky, of flowers, of love and of innocence, and of every thing grand and beautiful; let us go to our quiet chamber, or near a limpid stream, or where we will catch the pure spray of a magnificent waterfall.

An active and willing solicitor brings the doubtful suit to a happy issue.

The brain and heart of some are the archives in which all of your words, looks and movements are stored.

Be prompt rather to act than to complain.

When you give, give; do not lend.

It is easier to reduce the rash and fool hardy to true bravery, than to imbue the coward with that virtue.

Lovely women are like angels; when some men dream, it is always of angels.

Retreating is not running away, though running away is sometimes called retreating.

He who errs, and confesses his sin, is near reformation.
Time and disappointment are two loyal friends.

Cupid, some say, is not entirely blind, but very short-sighted, and, according to good Panza, looks through odd spectacles, which make copper look like gold, a cart like a coach, and a shrimp like a lobster.

Do not suffer yourself to be robbed of your treasure, and you will not have to curse the thief.

The laws, some one has said, are like cobwebs, they catch only the small flies.

It is easier for a prodigal to become liberal, than to become a miser.

Expedition and despatch anticipate the enemy, and victory becomes assured before the foe is prepared for defence.

The sweet singer, Anton, tells us that peace of mind is not as often found in the lordly mansion, as in the retired cottage.

It is better to overdo than underdo a thing.

Nothing, as Lafuente-Alcàntara says, is more interesting to the philosopher and moralist, than the lives, habits, passions and beliefs of what some call «the populace.»

Who can put a spoke into the wheel of fortune?
Women are in the main, an indispensable accident to men.

It is better for a man to do a rash act, than a cowardly one.

The Knight of La Mancha said: «It is a common adage, fair lady, that diligence is the mother of success.»

The highest poetical sentiments are found in the people, and in that part of the people who are called ignorant and uncultivated, who cannot express their thoughts with as much elegance as sincerity; the people, finally, who in Spain, as Trueba observes, describe the mother of Jesus as «the Mother of the Beautiful Love.»

Those persons who allow their tongues to run at random, are often more fools than knaves.

There cannot be smoke without fire.

The obstinate beggar will at last get a piece of bread.

There are misfortunes which have a commencement, but which will hardly have an end.

Most popular aphorisms or sayings, are a history of the people, condensed by their hearts.

The Spaniards always say: «A thing is never properly valued until it is lost forever.»

To acquire a good name is difficult, but it is still more difficult to retain. The young should acquire; the old should retain.

The sweetest music for a quiet conscience is the birds' notes, tuned to the key of nature, by the hand of the great musician—God!

The pains of the mind often afflict the body, more than the pains of the body.

He, who has not sense enough to know he is a brute, will live and die an ass.

Success, either good or bad, has a terrible enemy—memory.
Strange things may fall out in the roasting of an egg.

Valor is a virtue, situated between the two extremes of cowardice and temerity.

Where is the mortal, who, in traversing the vale of life, has not found sharp thorns among the roses.

In the depth of the heart lie sorrows some of which are known to mortals, but many of which are only known to God.

Keep your holidays peacefully, and do not throw the rope after the bucket.

Of your charming eyes, no complaint is made. They would perhaps like to look at me, but you do not allow them.

There are some people who have done what they ought, but they owe to others what they have done.

Music is not always a sign of feasting and merriment.

To call a war sacred is to say that it is possible to love and hate at the same time; to beat and caress with rage and love simultaneously. All contrary arguments, no matter whence they come, are capricious. They are utopian sayings, more or less clever, but utopian still.

Sow gales, and storms will arise in your path.

Hell is believed to be crowded with the ungrateful.

Riches are of little avail in many of the misfortunes to which we are liable.

Give when you can, but think of God, only of God, when you cannot give.

Take heart, and let hope raise in you a noble spirit.

There can be no wickedness where sweet music is appreciated.

He who in good faith makes public a kindness received, shows his inclination to repay it at the first opportunity.

When one gives to make happy, and the other receives in the same spirit, both are equally kind and generous. But when the gift is made, as is too often the case, from a bad motive, and when the recipient knows or suspects it, it would be difficult to say which of the two is the inferior.

Give always the preference to those conversations and pastimes, which, while diverting you, will not offend others.

Sunrise is the light of the living; sunset is the light of the dead.

The lips of a lover are often silent, leaving the eyes masters of language. In loving, the eyes have eloquent arguments.

A woman's real opinion and advice is seldom given; when it is, he who receives it, shows his folly if he does not follow it.

If misfortune overtake you, meet it with one of these two courses of reasoning: «It was not my fault, therefore I have no cause for self-reproach,» or «It was my fault, I must consequently endure it.» In either case accept it philosophically.

This is a time honored Spanish saying, «An honest maid should stay quietly at home, as if one leg were broken.»

A hen or a woman are lost by rambling.

Do not always believe in the letters or souvenirs of an absent lover. To you are the written, to others the spoken words, and some day you may have to learn the difference between words and actions.

Diligence is the mother of good fortune.

God created man, and the world has been pleased to prefix the adjective gentle. We do not honor the man whom the world styles gentleman, but him, who by his merit, earns the adjective.

Distrust the vain, and appreciate the humble.
If science did not already exist, we would have to invent it.

Time is apt to kill, or at least modify all the sentiments.

Though ignorance may be defined as the absence of intellectual light, and though Luna is the lady of darkness, no blockhead (or stupid) has ever become a lunatic.

She who loves to see, loves also to be seen.

After a storm comes fair weather.

Poetry is the daughter of sentiment.
There are few who are as valiant and magnanimous as they pretend to be.

Do not confound pride or dignity with inordinate self-esteem.

Success is like a great rock up which you can only climb with great difficulty, and from which it is very easy, and also very dangerous, to fall.

«He who seeketh danger, perisheth therein» so said Sancho. It is not prudent to attempt an exploit so dangerous, that we only escape from it through a miracle.

Do not measure a man by inches. A small man may be a giant in fame and knowledge.

Work always to bring profit to your mind and honor to your name.

To choose in marriage, requires not only our own best judgment, but the directions and help of God.

Whether good or bad, children should be loved and cherished by their parents. A child is a part of its parents, and if faulty should be treated like an ailing part of themselves.

To say there is no such thing as true love or real friendship in the world, is to say that the sun does not shine, the frost does not chill, nor the earth produce sustenance.

A cold face may sometimes go with a warm heart, though not often, for usually the face is a transparent covering, through which the soul is clearly seen.

Those who go to pray do not feel cold, they are heated by the rays of faith and love.

The God, who neglects not the birds of the air, nor the fish of the sea, will provide for his children.

Business should never sleep with you.

One man is no better than another, only in as much as he does more than another.

There are men, hints Cervantes, who think they must be masters, and that women were born only to wear the clog of obedience.

It is painful for tender feet to walk in rugged paths.

While the sun is shining, make your hay.

Time discovers all things, and discloses the truth when least expected.

Happy is he who has found one or two truthful friends or allies during a long life.

Avoid vice, but pity its victims.

We must not always look for bacon where we see the hooks.

Remember not to forsake the frying-pan for the fire.

Be brave; one of the effects of fear is to make things look like what they are not.

The most skilful gambler sometimes loses.

A man need not be very charitable to give his cloak away in the summer, but in the winter the most he can do is to share it. Remember the aphorism: «To give and keep always that which is fit requires a great deal of wisdom.»

Study first, trust afterward.

Many will tell in their sleep what they would not tell if awake.

When «good luck» knocks at the door it is not wise to keep it too long waiting, for—

«He who will not, when he may
When he will, may then have nay.»

Quoth the wife to the husband: «If thou wilt provide the dower for our daughter, I will promise to provide the husband.»

It is only in the power of great spirits to have patience when the world frowns, as well as to be joyful when it is gay.

Hope wisely, work much, and all will go well.

When lucky, be merry; when unlucky, do not be sad.

Of all the name bestowed upon the mother of God, none is more touching than Mater Dolorosa, the shelter of sorrow and poverty.

Sometimes he who looks longest, sees the least.

There is often a long distance between the fact and the telling.

When the water is moved, the fisherman is touched.

Friends are always ready to lend to a man in office.

A person who loves you tenderly may yet make you weep against his will.

Fanaticism, selfishness and obstinacy come to the same end.

If good women could only choose their husbands, we would have many good marriages in consequence of mutual true love.

A coquette says: «You do not love me any more; that does not annoy me in the least, for the stain of a ripe mulberry, with a fresh one is soon effaced.»

If sighs coming from one, and those going from another could meet and speak, how many sympathetic things they would have to tell each other.

The virtues, as well as the faults of others are often magnified by reason of malice and envy.

Man is a traveller; his life is a mountain.
Do not be proud. Beauty is as life, and life is as a flower, fresh one morning, withered and faded in a few hours.

If you wish to find a thing, search well and willingly.

When he felt all the warmth of love, you were all coolness; now that you feel all the love, he naturally thinks of all the difficulties.

Nothing more than neediness afflicts and irritates the spirit of the vain.

«Never judge by appearances.» Is a Spanish as well as an English saying.

There is nothing more painful than the pressure of saddening thoughts when you are obliged to smile and smile.

A truly good and loving heart is a beautiful star, in the midst of ugly clouds.

Talents are the best of all kinds of riches, for they can be imparted without harming them. The sharing of them doubles their value.

Perfect women are angels, and of course adorable. Of the imperfect ones there are two kinds, those who have hearts, but who would not make charming wives; and those who are very charming in some respects, but who have no heart, no heart.

You want him to forsake you, but he never will. Those who are good, preaches our pastor, cannot forget for a moment the being they worship.

A wise man once said that absence produces forgetfulness. He doubtless referred to men, for, being a wise man, he could not ignore this—that a woman's soul is like a torch which once set burning is not easily extinguished.

Study reforms even nature.

Worse than a few troubles are many.

Mean people doing their little worst to provoke trouble are seldom lacking anywhere.

So slow is the march of laziness along the road of human existence, and so squalid, and so feeble is it, that it is soon overtaken by poverty.

Do not admire mere beauty, for time will soon destroy it, but rather admire beautiful acts. A beautiful deed is within the reach of all.

Some say that to live is to dream; others say that to love is to dream, but it should be said that to love is to live.

To gain a heart when your sentiments have not been abused, be affable, courteous and reasonable. When your feelings have been cruelly and purposely wounded, forgive if you can, but keep your dignity and remember pertinently.

Because a man is of a splendid and generous disposition, those persons benefitted by him must not believe themselves less bound to feel, and prove, and show their gratitude.

Mind not evil gossips and do not honor them with the name of «Society.»

Whatever sufferings you have caused, they are the same that you yourself shall suffer.

Better than a pleasant surprise or caress, are two.

To say, or do that which may harm is something more than imprudence.
A fanatic will never comprehend but one phase of a subject: with him there is no possibility of a quiet controversy.

Not to go to war, Santiago married, but he had so much fighting at home, that he now longs to be a soldier.

Those who constantly promise and never fulfil, are like imperfect clocks;
they mark but they never strike the hour.

«Let us repeat a thing one hundred times to be heard once,» said Santo Tomas.

A cat in mittens will catch few mice.

Be not always severe, nor always merciful, choose a mean between the two extremes, for that middle point is the centre of discretion.

It is impossible to love two at the same time. Can one light illumine two distant rooms simultaneously?

Show yourself too kind or confer at once too many benefits, and, if you are dealing with an insensible person, you will soon and certainly be underrated and abused.

All things in the world have their uses; your own faults and mistakes will doubtless harm you, but the misdoings of others, if well studied, may be your salvation.

«Dubitat Augustinus.» When you say I must see to believe, you show no faith, little hope and less charity.

The study of the world is like any other deep study.

When obliged to speak tell your whole story, but without superfluous comment.

One «take it» is better than a thousand «I will give you.»

Veritas vinci.—Truth will prevail over falsehood and rise to the surface, as oil rises upon water.

To thwart a true passion is like obstructing the road to Heaven.

In studying or discussing questions look them fairly in the face.

The wise man will speedily rectify an error; but when was an ignorant one ever known to acknowledge a blunder?

You may be unfortunate and still keep your dignity. It is equally possible to be poor but envied, and, seemingly, unhappy but really very happy.

Ambition is vanquished by honor and peace.

Cupid is attracted by your glowing beauty. No wonder, the boy being blind and lightly dressed feels cold, and longs to be near the fire.

The loudest talker is not always the best reasoner.

If you can save a certain sum of money, and wish to invest it well, buy good books and learn.

Be not always under the dominion of your own will, for it is the vice of the ignorant and wicked, that they always presume upon their infallibility.

It is far better and holier to believe than to doubt.
Abhor all despotisms except that of the heart.

No one can exactly know the sorrow of another, for no one can tell exactly where and when your boot hurts your foot.

Idleness appears at first to be a friend, but soon ends by becoming a tyrant.

He who has made one basket can make a hundred.

The last monkey is the one most apt to be drowned.

Time never makes lawful what calumny invents.
For a hungry man it is hard to find too dry a crust.

Make yourself of honey and you will be eaten by the flies.

Never be too sure of a pleasure in store for you, for the nectar which you see in your glass may be spilled before your lips have touched it.

The «Operibus credere, et non verbis,» it is sometimes wise to remember.

What is the wheel work of society? Vanity. What is the history of the world? «Vanitas, vanitatur et per omnia vanitas.»

Generosity never exists in the beggarly heart, though it often exists in the beggar's heart.

By an evil tongue more persons are injured than by the greatest accident. An accident may occasionally injure many individuals, but an evil tongue injures constantly.

Self loving is self poisoning.

Beware of pride, my angel, lest you fall, for another angel fell by pride.

From a beautiful pink blooming in a charming garden, the asp will extract poison, while the industrious bee gather honey.

He strengthens himself who besides carrying his own duties and burdens takes upon himself as many of the burdens of his friends as he can support.

From such a tree, such wood, and from such wood such a chip.

Never receive hypocrisy as a companion, nor allow your tongue to disguise your thoughts. Let your words always be the echoing chords to the beating of your heart.

If after having received favors, you avoid gratefulness, you are positively more with Judas than with Christ. Nothing will relieve you of the stain, but to repent and prove grateful to your friend.

Greater than all miseries together are the miseries of the heart.

Grows beautiful the rose, but soon after dies; the strong oak is uprooted by the still stronger wind; a little flame reduces to ashes the grandest temple. Every thing is brittle, as every one is mortal.

Said a Spanish boatman: «I can forgive anything for love, and so, I suppose, can the ALMIGHTY.»

PLEASE READ THIS BEFORE YOU DISTRIBUTE OR USE THIS WORK

To protect the Project Gutenberg™ mission of promoting the free distribution of electronic works, by using or distributing this work (or any other work associated in any way with the phrase “Project Gutenberg”), you agree to comply with all the terms of the Full Project Gutenberg License available with this file or online at www.gutenberg.org/license.

Section 1. General Terms of Use and Redistributing Project Gutenberg electronic works

1.A. By reading or using any part of this Project Gutenberg electronic work, you indicate that you have read, understand, agree to and accept all the terms of this license and intellectual property (trademark/copyright) agreement. If you do not agree to abide by all the terms of this agreement, you must cease using and return or destroy all copies of Project Gutenberg electronic works in your possession. If you paid a fee for obtaining a copy of or access to a Project Gutenberg electronic work and you do not agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement, you may obtain a refund from the person or entity to whom you paid the fee as set forth in paragraph 1.E.8.

1.B. “Project Gutenberg” is a registered trademark. It may only be used on or associated in any way with an electronic work by people who agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement. There are a few things that you can do with most Project Gutenberg electronic works even without complying with the full terms of this agreement. See paragraph 1.C below. There are a lot of things you can do with Project Gutenberg electronic works if you follow the terms of this agreement and help preserve free future access to Project Gutenberg electronic works. See paragraph 1.E below.

1.C. The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation (“the Foundation” or PGLAF), owns a compilation copyright in the collection of Project Gutenberg electronic works. Nearly all the individual works in the collection are in the public domain in the United States. If an individual work is unprotected by copyright law in the United States and you are located in the United States, we do not claim a right to prevent you from copying, distributing, performing, displaying or creating derivative works based on the work as long as all references to Project Gutenberg are removed. Of course, we hope that you will support the Project Gutenberg mission of promoting free access to electronic works by freely sharing Project Gutenberg works in compliance with the terms of this agreement for keeping the Project Gutenberg name associated with the work. You can easily comply with the terms of this agreement by keeping this work in the same format with its attached full Project Gutenberg License when you share it without charge with others.

1.D. The copyright laws of the place where you are located also govern what you can do with this work. Copyright laws in most countries are in a constant state of change. If you are outside the United States, check the laws of your country in addition to the terms of this agreement before downloading, copying, displaying, performing, distributing or creating derivative works based on this work or any other Project Gutenberg work. The Foundation makes no representations concerning the copyright status of any work in any country other than the United States.

1.E. Unless you have removed all references to Project Gutenberg:

1.E.1. The following sentence, with active links to, or other immediate access to, the full Project Gutenberg License must appear prominently whenever any copy of a Project Gutenberg work (any work on which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” appears, or with which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” is associated) is accessed, displayed, performed, viewed, copied or distributed:

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg™ License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is derived from texts not protected by U.S. copyright law (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase “Project Gutenberg” associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread works not protected by U.S. copyright law in creating the Project Gutenberg™ collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain “Defects,” such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES - Except for the “Right of Replacement or Refund” described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH 1.F.3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. 1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you 'AS-IS', WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PURPOSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility:
www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.
